

Clays Says His Wife is of Nervous Disposition and Fault-Finding

Clays case—Della vs. M. V.—has come to be looked upon as a landmark in the divorce calendar. Up again Friday before Judge in the equity division of the district court. Mrs. Clays filed her petition for divorce, on grounds of nervous disposition and fault-finding, principally on orders to cause. At the present time, and long time past, Clays has been treated by a restraining order from any of his property in State. Her complaint, Mrs. Clays alleges, her husband has deserted her and to provide for her. She also forth that he owns an interest in a ranch at Black Horse, Nev., in addition to his holdings in Utah, and that she is worth $10,000. Clays denies that he is worth any like the amount stated by his wife and alleges that she owns a ranch in a ranch in this county worth $10,000, and she also owns a rooming house in city worth $600, in addition to her holdings in Utah, which, he says, are worth $10,000. Clays comes back with the allegation that he is in love with another woman and will marry her if he can get a divorce. Friday's hearing was upon a motion by the defendant that he be allowed to file a counter-claim, in which he asked for a divorce from his wife. In answer to the motion, Mrs. Clays is fretful, nervous, fault-finding never satisfied. Her husband says she is never willing to live in any place for any considerable period of time and enumerates a number of places at which they have resided since their marriage sixteen years ago. He also alleges that his wife is of a jealous disposition and frequently accuses him of unfaithfulness without any basis in which to answer it. Since November, Mr. Clays has been paying his wife $50 a month temporary alimony.

Mary E. Freeman Ferguson appeared as an applicant for a decree of divorce from Robert Leroy Ferguson, to whom she was married March 25, 1905. Mrs. Ferguson was accompanied by her little 3-year-old daughter and told the court that Ferguson had not supported her since their marriage or given her anything for the child since its birth. She also testified that her husband had not lived with her since their marriage. Her mother and brother had assisted her, she said, with her own efforts, had enabled her to live. Mrs. Lena Erickson, a neighbor of Mrs. Ferguson, said that Ferguson was a nice, healthy-looking young man, who looked like he could do a good day's work if he wanted to. Mrs. Ferguson also testified that Mrs. Ferguson had been supporting herself. Upon this showing, Judge Morse granted a decree in the case, gave Mrs. Ferguson the custody of the child and awarded her alimony in the sum of $15 a month, with $50 attorney's fees.

Sarah B. Ashworth, who testified that she was a stenographer, was granted a decree of divorce from Attorney Thomas F. Ashworth, on the ground of failure to support. Mrs. Ashworth told the court that she was married to Ashworth April 30, 1906, and that they had one child fifteen months old. Since her marriage to Ashworth, she said, he had failed to support her. This testimony was corroborated by Mrs. Ashworth's brother.

Sarah Alder confided to the court that she was married to Albert F. Alder at Farmington, April 9, 1907, but said that he had never furnished a home for her, or supported her since that time. She was granted a decree and restored to her maiden name, Richardson.

STORM HAS DEPARTED, SAYS WEATHER ORACLE

Dr. Hyatt Insists That Barometer Is Rising and "Fair" Is Due.

Despite the fact that at a late hour Friday night the valley was overcast with heavy dark clouds, the weather prophet said that Salt Lake City would again enjoy unexcelled weather today.

He backed up this daring statement by pointing to the barometer and saying: "The pressure is now rising." He then went on to explain how the low pressure area was moving eastward and how an area of high pressure will encompass Salt Lake City today.

Concerning the conditions elsewhere, he said: "The low barometric pressure over the plateau has divided with centers over Utah and Wyoming, causing precipitation over portions of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and the British Northwest Territory. The storm over the Ohio valley and Lake region has changed but little, causing heavy rains east of the Mississippi valley, with largest amounts at New York, Boston and Scranton. Over the north Pacific, the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys the barometric pressure is high, causing much colder weather over those districts, with frost temperatures.

Forecast for Salt Lake City and vicinity Saturday, fair.

Friday's record at the Salt Lake City office of the weather bureau, for the twenty-four hours ending at 6 p. m., was as follows:

Temperature at 6 p. m., 39 degrees; minimum temperature, 34 degrees; maximum temperature, 39 degrees; mean temperature, 36 degrees, which is 10 degrees below normal.

Total excess of precipitation since January 1, 2.34 inches.

Total precipitation since the first of the month, .36 inch, which is .15 inch above normal.

Accumulated deficiency of precipitation since January 1, 3.44 inches.

Relative humidity at 6 p. m., 100 per cent.
